One of the strangest, most difficult engineering tasks attempted in a long time will be the removal of a granite pyramid erected 40 years ago at the top of Sherman Pass in the Rocky Mountains. This pyramid is to be removed five miles and set in place again. It is 60 feet high and 60 feet square at the base.

THE OFF-TO-"BLIGHTY" SMILE!

The smile on the face of the patient in this picture is one of that contagious variety that is worn by all of the soldiers in France who are wounded badly enough to be sent home but not badly enough to lose interest in everything. Note that smile "germ" has already attacked all the others in the picture. The photograph was taken at a casualty clearing station where the Red Cross train is waiting to pull out with its load of wounded.

BITS OF STATE NEWS

The breaking up of the ice began way up the rivers. Monday night's Elkins Inter-Mountain contained the following: "A great ice gorge in the Tygart's Valley river just below Juniper has backed the water up to such a depth that the fires have been drowned out in the coke ovens of the West Virginia Coal & Coke company. Several residences and stores have been flooded and if efforts now being made to dynamite the gorge are not successful heavy property loss is likely to result. Some of the stores at Juniper have moved their stocks to places of safety."

This is not strictly a West Virginia item, but it will interest a lot of West Virginia people. It is taken from the columns of the Wheeling Telegraph: "As a result of the embargo on the railroads that does not include beer as a food, Bridgeport is threatened with bottled beer famine. Only one saloon it is declared has a supply of bottled beer and that is Bellaire production. In fact so serious is the situation becoming with saloonists that they intimate they may have to take steps for the conservation of their stock. Railroad platforms are piled high with empty cases of bottles waiting return to Cincinnati and Pittsburgh."

Late last week, before the warm rains of Saturday and Sunday came the Elkins Inter-Mountain contained the following interesting item: One of the most unusual results of the continuous grip which the ice king has laid upon this section since early December is reported from the lumber town of Bemis, where the firm of J. M. Bemis & Son operate a big band sawmill employing all told 300 men and cutting 100,000 feet of lumber daily. The mill is located on Shaffer's Fork of Cheat river high up in the Cheat mountains and the continued cold has frozen the river up so solid that it is impossible to secure a supply of water with which to run the mill. Even the electric light plant cannot be operated and the town is in darkness, necessity forcing the strictly observance of fuel conservation known of anywhere. The plant closed December 20 for the Christmas holidays and on attempting to open January 10 the water supply was so low that only enough could be had to make some repairs to the mill. A few days later the plant was completely frozen up and has continued so. This firm at the close of the year gave each one of its employees who had been with it a year or more a bonus equal to 30 per cent. of their annual wages, amounting in many cases to as much as $500. This is helping the men keep their families through the enforced shutdown and when Old Winter loosens his grip the loyal employees of this firm will be on the job. Other plants are greatly handicapped by the water shortage.
